

Dimitrios

setting

we are in a strict, highly achievement-oriented world of work (highly specialized scientists, auditor, ...) People wants to get ahead and working for this. We have a strong cold competition.

For sure is, homosexuality is clearly "officially allowed", as it is politically correct. But if somebody would admit being homosexual he or she would be dismissed from the employment because of hypocritical reasons.

outline

We are in the office. Some nice "friendly" people are working hard on their paper work. (telling jokes, inbetween one with homosexual background)

One of the young promising colleages is gay. That is too many positive qualities and an obvious target. A target for hassling and bullying.

He was told his superior would be gay as well, and the superior felt in love with him. The information came to him that he must believe it's coming directly from the superior.

As audiance we are told, the superior is really having homosexual thoughts. But he's not a person to give in this emotions also for his strong faith.

On a firm's party with partners, also our young protagonist is coming with a female partner, as it is officialy necessary.

But this party is for him to reveal his feelings to his superior. He is not going to be rejectet at once. In a struggle with his emotions and faith the superior is dismissing him later on ...